OPEN POSITIONS

Continuing Track Assistant Professor, Mechanical Engineering

The Department of Mechanical Engineering (ME) at the University of Delaware invites applications for an Assistant Professor in the Continuing track, with primary workload focused on teaching and service related to undergraduate instruction in the mechanical engineering discipline. Particular expertise in the fields of machine design, industry-standard manufacturing practices, CAD/CAM, thermofluids, automotive, or aerospace applications is desired. Appointment at the associate level may be considered for applicants with appropriate experience. Applications will be reviewed on a rolling basis starting Feb 14, 2022. The full job posting can be found here: https://careers.udel.edu/en-us/job/498407/continuing-track-assistant-professor-mechanical-engineering

Lecturer Position in First Year Engineering

The College of Engineering at the University of Kentucky invites applications for a non-tenure-track Lecturer-faculty position in our First Year Engineering program. The position is long-term renewable with a start date of Fall 2022. Lecturer applicants should hold at least a Master's degree in engineering or computer science, and individuals with prior industrial experience are especially encouraged to apply.
